Common Mental Illnesses

Anxiety Disorder

Anxiety disorders are the most common mental illnesses in the United States. People with anxiety disorders may feel excessively frightened, distressed, or uneasy in situations in which most other people would not experience these same feelings. Anxiety disorders can cause low self-esteem, lead to substance use, and increase isolation from one's family and friends.

Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder (OCD)

Obsessions are intrusive, irrational thoughts. Compulsions are repetitive rituals such as hand washing, counting, checking, hoarding, and arranging. OCD occurs when an individual experiences obsessions and compulsions for more than an hour each day, in a way that interferes with their daily life.

Schizophrenia

Schizophrenia impairs a person's ability to think clearly, manage emotions, make decisions, and relate to others. Psychosis is a common symptom of schizophrenia and is defined as the experience of loss of contact with reality and may involve:

- Hallucinations (hearing, seeing, or feeling things that are not real)
- Delusions (having irrational beliefs)
- Disorganized speech and disorganized behavior

Co-Occurring Disorder

When someone experiences a mental illness and substance use problem simultaneously, it is called a co-occurring disorder. It is a very broad category that can range from someone developing mild depression because of binge drinking, to someone's symptoms of bipolar disorder becoming more severe when that person uses drugs during periods of mania. Either a substance use disorder or a mental illness can develop first.

Bipolar Disorder (BD)

People living with bipolar disorder often experience two intense emotional states. These two states are known as mania and depression. A person experiencing mania may have:

- Extreme irritability
- Surges of energy and reduced need for sleep
- Talkativeness
- Pleasure-seeking and increased risk-taking behavior

When an individual is experiencing symptoms of depression, they feel extreme sadness, hopelessness, and lack of energy.

Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD)

It is normal to be distressed after experiencing or witnessing a traumatic event such as abuse, a natural disaster, or extreme violence. Symptoms of PTSD may include:

- Nightmares and/or flashbacks
- Hyper-vigilance (being easily startled or scared)
- Feeling numb, angry, irritable and/or distracted

Sometimes these symptoms last for weeks or months after the event. PTSD can impair daily functioning, working, or maintaining relationships.

Major Depressive Disorder

Major depression is a serious medical illness. Unlike normal emotional experiences of sadness or loss, major depression is persistent and can interfere with a person's thoughts, behavior, mood, activity, and physical health. Some symptoms of depression may include:

- Changes in sleep, appetite, and energy
- Feelings of guilt, hopelessness, emptiness, and worthlessness
- Recurrent thoughts of death or suicide

Initial Assessment and Treatment

If you think your loved one has a mental illness but they have never had an assessment by a qualified mental health professional, this is the first step to take.

If your loved one has private health insurance or a Medicaid/Healthy Louisiana Plan, contact the company for a list of in-network professionals. Find contact information for the Healthy Louisiana plans below, or call the helpline at 1 (888) 342-6207.

Psychiatric Crisis

A crisis is usually defined by one or more of the following:

- Suicidal, homicidal, and/or other violent thoughts or actions
- Psychosis: usually an inability to distinguish what is real from what is not (hallucinations, delusions, and/or paranoia)
- Inability to provide basic self-care due to symptoms of mental illness

Many families have found themselves witnessing these symptoms in their loved ones, and it can be scary. To create a safe environment during this “altered reality state,” you should:

- Avoid threatening, shouting, or criticizing.
- Speak softly and in simple sentences.
- Avoid standing over them or blocking the doorway. This can be intimidating and make them feel threatened.
- Avoid direct, continuous eye contact or touching them. Complying with their reasonable requests may help them feel somewhat in control.

You can call your human services authority’s 24/7 crisis services:

- Jefferson Mobile Crisis Team (504) 832-5123
Serving Jefferson Parish
- Metropolitan Crisis Response Team, (504) 826-2675
Serving Orleans, Plaquemines, and St. Bernard Parishes

When in doubt, call 911. Tell them there is a “mental health emergency” and officers will be sent to assist you and your loved one. Ask for a Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) officer.

CIT officers have specific training to assist someone who is in crisis. CIT increases the likelihood that someone will receive psychiatric help and decreases the risk of injury and incarceration.

Local Law Enforcement Agencies with Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) Officers

- Orleans Parish: New Orleans Police Department
- Jefferson Parish: Jefferson Parish Sheriff's Office

During a psychiatric crisis, dial 911 and request a CIT officer. (Learn more about CIT on page 7.) If you are in Orleans you can also request Unit 6512, which is the Crisis Transportation Unit.

Hospitalization

Often when we hear the word “hospitalization”, we think about the emergency room (ER) or a medical hospital.

Usually, the ER is the first step in the process of handling a psychiatric crisis. The ER will do an evaluation or assessment and then possibly recommend another treatment center, which may be in a hospital psychiatric unit or a separate mental health hospital.

After the ER, the treatment center your loved one may go to depends on the following:

- What, if any, insurance they have, and
 - If there are any psychiatric hospital beds available

The following is a brief list of local hospitals where your loved one may be assessed and/or treated:

Know Your Rights!

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, otherwise known as HIPAA, are laws that protect the privacy of an individual's health information. HIPAA prevents treatment providers from sharing information with you as the family member without your loved one's permission. Sharing is only allowed when your loved one signs a Release of Information form authorizing discussion with specific people.

If your loved one refuses or is unable to sign this form, you can still call the hospital or other treatment providers and give the staff members any information you believe is important to your loved one's treatment.

The staff members may say to you:

“I can neither confirm nor deny that this individual is in this hospital.”

Here is a helpful response:

“I know you cannot tell me anything, but as a family member I have important information to give the treatment team in case you are treating [name].”

(You can also email or fax this information to the hospital staff.)

Advance Directives

An advance directive is a legal document that allows your loved one to make decisions in advance about their treatment in the event of a psychiatric crisis. These decisions include but are not limited to medications, short-term admission to a treatment facility, electroshock therapy, and outpatient services. In the state of Louisiana, your loved one's treatment team must follow the advance directive unless the chosen treatments prove ineffective.

Creating an advance directive must be your loved one's choice, and a physician or psychologist must deem them capable of making reasoned decisions at the time of its creation.

You can find a copy of the state's advance directive packet at www.namineworleans.org/advance-directive.

Once this form has been completed, copies should be given to your loved one's mental healthcare providers, family members your loved one decides should have it, the person appointed to make decisions for them in the event of a crisis (if applicable), and anyone else involved in their healthcare.

Discharge Planning

A hospital social worker or case worker should help your loved one plan to leave the hospital and return home. Ask to participate.

Your loved one will need to find an outpatient professional to meet with for medication management, counseling, and/or other services. In order to obtain a list of mental health treatment providers, contact your loved one's insurance agency or Medicaid/Healthy Louisiana Plan (see pg. 6). For Medicare, contact individual providers. If your loved one has no insurance, contact their local human services authority (see pg. 6).

— Assertive Community Treatment (ACT) —

Your loved one may be eligible for Assertive Community Treatment. ACT recipients receive multi-disciplinary, round-the-clock staffing of a psychiatric unit within the comfort of their own home and community. Services are not time bound, and goals are to lessen or eliminate debilitating symptoms, prevent hospitalizations, and enhance quality of life. Contact your local ACT Teams for eligibility requirements:

- Jefferson Parish ACT Teams: (504) 455-2446 (Louisiana Family Preservation Services), (504) 247-9120 (Resources for Human Development)
- Orleans Parish ACT Teams: (504) 482-2735 (Louisiana Family Preservation Services), (504) 302-1323 (Northwestern Human Services), (504) 821-7085 (Resources for Human Development)

Your loved one must agree to receiving services. A good time to talk to them about ACT is during discharge planning.

Other services your loved one may be eligible for include community psychiatric support and treatment (CPST) and psychosocial rehabilitation (PSR) skills training. See page 25 for more information on these NAMI New Orleans programs.

Payment & Insurance

———— Medicaid and Medicaid Expansion ————

Medicaid/Healthy Louisiana is a state-run program administered by the Louisiana Department of Health and Hospitals (DHH). To be eligible, your loved one must be low income. Call the state Medicaid helpline (page 6) for more information.

Due to the complexity of the application and the number of documents required to complete it, we recommend that your loved one receive assistance with the process. Below is a brief list of places where your loved one can walk in and get help with their Medicaid application:

Medicare

Medicare is a federally run program designed for the elderly and for persons with disabilities. For a person with a disability to be eligible, they must be receiving Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI). What if My Loved One is Refusing Treatment?

This is not uncommon, especially for those who are experiencing psychosis. They may be confused, disoriented, scared, and paranoid, among many other complex emotions.

Each parish has a coroner's office, which will grant an Order of Protective Custody (OPC) to a credible adult who has observed behavior in the person that falls under our earlier definition of psychiatric crisis (see pg. 7). The OPC will result in the person being taken by police officers to a hospital emergency room for a psychiatric evaluation. Contact information for local coroner's offices can be found below:

Orleans Parish 3001 Earhart Blvd. New Orleans, LA, 70125 (504) 658-9660	Jefferson Parish 2018 8th St. Harvey, LA, 70058 (504) 365-9100

Let the person you speak to know that you are looking to obtain an Order of Protective Custody, and you will be directed accordingly.

Assistive Outpatient Treatment (AOT)

Someone may have great difficulty meeting their own needs for treatment and may reject outpatient treatment offered to them on a voluntary basis. Nicola's Law (pg. 15) may apply if they are a danger to themselves or others and they experience repeated incarceration or emergency room visits. If so, they may be court-ordered to comply with prescribed treatment plans to avoid incarceration or commitment to a psychiatric facility.

Nicola's Law

In response to the shooting death of NOPD officer Nicola Cotton by a mental health consumer, the Louisiana Legislature enacted Nicola's Law. This law outlines the criteria for court-ordered compliance with prescribed treatment plans, known as AOT (pg. 14). Any interested person may file a petition for AOT with the help of a lawyer and with written agreement from the coroner in the jurisdiction in which the individual is found.
